

“Transnational Reconfiguration of Citizenship and Belonging,” A Roundtable Discussion

Jasmin Lilian Diab, LERC

August 12, 2014

The Lebanese Emigration Research Center (LERC) at Notre Dame University-Louaize (NDU), in collaboration with Dr. George Abdelnour, Chairperson of the Department of English and Translation at the Faculty of Humanities (FH), NDU, organized in NDU’s Abu Khater Auditorium a roundtable discussion titled, "Transnational Reconfiguration of Citizenship and Belonging," with guest speaker Dr. Carol Fadda-Conrey and author of the book Contemporary Arab-American Literature.

(from left) Dr. Fadda-Conrey with her daughter, during the roundtable discussion, (NDU, Aug. 2014)

Attendees included professors from the Faculty of Law and Political Science (FLPS) and the FH as well as the LERC and Center for Research in Values and Philosophy (CRVP) staff.

Dr. Fadda-Conrey at the head of the table answering the questions of the attendees, (NDU, Aug. 2014)

After presenting her book briefly as well as her professional background, Dr. Fadda-Conrey went on to answer the questions of the attendees, concerning both her book, as well as her insights on the notions of citizenship and belonging. Dr. George Abdelnour moderated the discussion.

After the discussion, Dr. Fadda-Conrey visited the LERC and was briefed on the Center's work and recent activities.